RI THEME FOR APRIL: "Magazine Month"

When people turn to modern sources of information it is usually the internet or a magazine. There is an appeal about hard copy information that is found or can be carried anywhere. Not surprising then, that the Rotary Magazine provides a high profile and effective vehicle for reaching out to the non Rotary world. Two questions arise, "Are we making good use of it, and if not, what is there that I can do?"

Here are some practical ideas for using the Rotarian magazine. If you and your Rotarian partner receive two magazines think of where the second magazine might be well received. The local doctor's office waiting room comes to mind as does other health care facilities. Of course, give a potential Rotarian the "ROTARIAN" magazine. It showcases many articles of interest in each monthly issue.

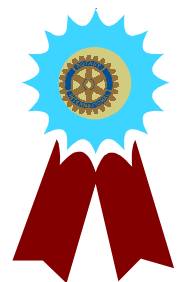

An effective form of advertising often seen today is to clip out articles from the Rotarian and after attaching a post-it note, mail the information to a friend. The note could say something topical or the more generic "Thinking Of You".

If you have heard the expression amongst academics that "one has to publish or perish", it may be obvious the effectiveness of communicating with one's target audience through a published article. Why not submit an article to the Rotarian about your favorite fundraiser or capturing the essence of some other popular event in your club?

To be sure, there are many more ways to promote Rotary through the use of our own high quality magazine. What are your suggestions? Send along your thoughts and a summary of the best ideas will come out in the next version of the District Governor's newsletter.
DG Steve Rickard, Governor 2005-2006
